SUPREME COURT'S SERVICE

The United States supreme court, which by a coincidence has begun in a palatial new building what many believe will be its most important session, is hampered more than it is helped by its conspicuous position. Observers say this is evident among the court's members, who are adjusting themselves with difficulty to the space and magnificence of their new quarters.

The supreme court's service does not consist of its decisions on sensational cases closely associated with political issues. The court properly resents its present role, if reports of the private opinions of its members may be trusted. Fortunately, the members seem interested in doing everything possible to preserve an attitude of detachment from politics.

Last Monday, the court handed down 380 orders. Among them were consents to review two cases involving the constitutionality of the Tennessee valley authority and the agricultural adjustment act, two keystones of the new deal legislative structure. These cases, though formally only details in the court's program, will attract so much interest they will seem to constitute the court's entire activity.

Obviously, that is far from the fact. In the session which is starting the supreme court's real service will be performed along the paths of routine duty. This is an unusual period, however, and the court has been made an unwilling accomplice to the enervating plot which has been thrust upon the world by circumstances.

Instead of being permitted to perform its function as one of the three branches of the government in an atmosphere of judicial calmness, the court will be subjected to the whims and prejudices of an excited population. By the crowd, it will be regarded as a participant in the issues which engage popular attention, instead of as an institution whose value to the nation lies in its detachment. Fortunately, members of the court apparently are doing everything possible to submerge their personalities in the impersonal institution they are serving.

MUCH ADO

Thousands of young men and women throughout the United States are getting outside help which enables them to attend college. Some of the young men are football players. Some of them are football players' first and students afterward, but not all of them by any means.

Gov. Davey's recent remark about football being the "supreme purpose of education" may have been, as the governor now says it was, a joke. But the fact is it wasn't taken as a joke. Certainly the Ohio State football players whose jobs in Columbus were given widespread publicity as a result of Gov. Davey's fight with the university can't be expected to see the funny side of it.

If there is anything culpable in the arrangement whereby students are able to get employment to help defray the expenses of their education, the students are not to be blamed for it. Whether or not they happen to be good football players does not affect their standing. If a student who shows promise of being a credit to a college is able to win a scholarship, or even to get a job, certainly an outstanding athlete should be granted the same privilege. A football player, incidentally, would seem to have as much right to hold a state job as a ward heeler.

Annually, the United States gets excited over the fact that football players are helped with their educational expenses. Apparently, Gov. Davey will get credit for starting the furor in 1935. It's a distinction of dubious worth and will continue to be so until someone explains why young men who play football should not have as good a claim to outside help in paying their school expenses as young men who can't play football.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—The depression's aftermath coiled many queer mental kinks along its destructive path. There is the middle aged man-about-town with a flourishing business of his own who lost everything in 24 hours. Fortunately he has several grown children amply fixed.

They provide for all the needed comforts, including the fresh lily flower he has worn since early manhood. Yet poverty's mark of terror is still upon him. Rational about most things, he believes he is penniless and in danger of starvation.

So when he meets acquaintances on the street he panhandles for as little as 25 cents. But continues to lunch at the best places, charge accounts having been arranged for him. Even after a filling meal he will often ask the waiter for loan of a small amount.

Then the Wall Street broker, once a delight to the gleamers along the way that is white. He, too, was untrussed over night. The shock gave him a delusion of grandeur. With his spare nickles he phones for table reservations at expensive cafes and eats in one-armed lunches.

With a new three-year starring contract, Irvin S. Cobb is likely to New York permanently. He has put his co-operative Park avenue apartment and Easthampton home on the market. And sometime ago bought a former Garbo mansion at Santa Monica. Cobb's advent in the movies was not a sudden whim or freak of circumstance. He has always had a secret longing to be an actor. He expresses in a limited way by his countrywide swing of the Chautauquas and on various lecture junkets. When in the full flush of his writing career, he worked from 9 a. m. until 1 p. m. daily and his afternoons were usually spent at the Lambs or The Players in company with actors. His cronies included Holbrook Blinn, Maclyn Arbuckle, Frank Craven, Wilton Lackey, Sam Bernard and Lew Fields.

Up until a few years ago, there were four grand old men of the palmy days of opera bouffe. They were DeWolf Hopper, Francis Wilson, Jefferson DeAngellis and Frank Daniels. They were all past 70 and seemed destined to reach the century mark. But time changed the picture and only Wilson remains. Of the illustrious four, three came out of that marvelous incubator of talent, the McCaul Opera Company, Daniels being the exception. Francis Wilson, the survivor, is lively as a cricket. His notes now and then have the jubilant spirit of a very young man.

A jobless telegraph operator in Reading, Pa., writes: "I am grateful to the depression for an acquaintance with Dickens. Employed, I would not have visited the public library and spent hours with the author who top-notches in making the trivial tremendous. Dickens can take a speck of dust and make it furl, twirl, whirl and swirl through a half dozen pages. So that a wisp becomes a whirlwind."

They tell of a Saturday night fisticuff in Leavenworth, Kansas, in which Bide Dudley was one of the participants in his younger days. His opponent was twice his size and husky. Before any actual blows were struck, three lookers-on grabbed Dudley while one man grabbed his enemy. After a little scuffling Bide said to his trio: "Two of you fellows go over and help hold him. One man can hold me."

Bagatelles: Alf Landon, the "horse and buggy" governor of Kansas balances his budget and lets no man go hungry. . . . Harry Klinger, president of a large auto company, addresses every one of his hundreds of salesmen by their first name. . . . W. R. Hearst takes his coffee half hot milk and half coffee. . . . Virginia Faulkner is being hailed as another Dorothy Parker. . . . Jack Frye, once an airmail pilot, now an airline president, flies his own plane over his company's entire route once a month. . . . Dean Cornwell, Tom Webb, John La Gatta and Reynaldo Luza, all magazine illustrators, are also camera addicts. . . . Stanley Dollar, Jr., son of the shipping magnate, is an avid racing boat fan. . . . Enthusiastic deep sea anglers: Caleb Bragg and Dick Berlin. . . . Marlen E. Pew is on a trip around the world.

No modern novelist has a name so damascened in courtly splendor as Coningsby Dawson. It even surpasses Sir Hall Caine. He makes one think in terms of gold plate service, of laces in silver-buckled knee breeches, of the pampered heir, the son of the old Earl who calls his father "Governor."

THE STARS SAY

For Friday, October 18

Judging by the strong solar as well as lunar aspects dominating the activities of this day, there should be much liveliness in the way of new ventures and opportunities, especially as they relate to advertising, promotion, publishing or public enterprises. This is provided precaution is exercised in investments. The finances are not too encouraging, though the prestige and popularity will be enhanced, despite small delays and opposition. It is safe to deal with mergers, rings or secret bodies.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very lively and advantageous year, especially in channels where writings, advertising, promotions and publication are factors. Investments should be wisely considered, and minor obstacles are likely to call for patience and perseverance. But all transactions with combines, mergers or secret societies should flourish.

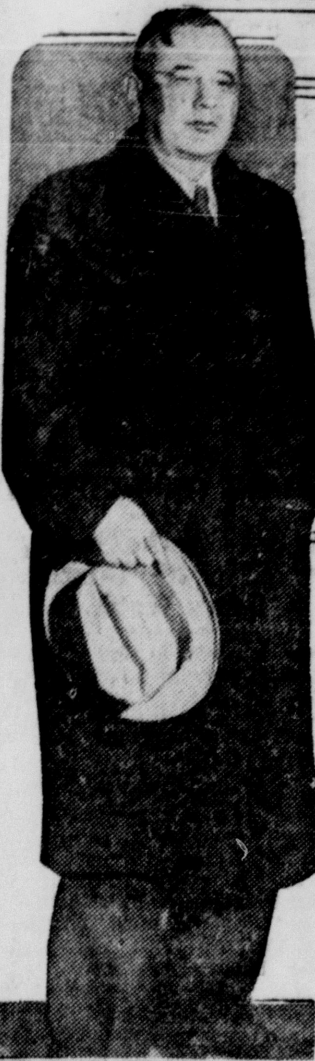

A child born on this day may be versatile and enterprising, particularly in all pertaining to writings, publicity and public affairs, gaining by means of intrigue or secret agreements.

Notable nativity: Thomas E. Reed, statesman.

Landon's Presidential Boom Gains Momentum

Gov. Alfred Landon

Peggy Ann Landon

Mrs. Landon, baby Nancy and son John

Passing weeks mark an increasing surge of followers to the standard of Alfred M. Landon, governor of Kansas and potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. His achievement in balancing his state's budget after winning the gubernatorial election during a Roosevelt year has put his name in the national headlines. He appeals both to the farmer and the business man and has geographical considerations in his favor. Landon, now serving his second term as governor, is married, has three children, and lives at Independence, Kas. Landon made a fortune as an independent oil operator, is genial and unexcitable, and is popular with the "common man".

HEALTH

By Dr. Royal S. Copeland
New York City

Food For Growth

Not only does the right choice of foods influence the growth and development of the child, but in every way it builds up the health. It serves, too, to promote regular bowel movements. In many instances, as a matter of fact, constipation in children can be traced to faulty diet.

It is the rule that the child with regular habits of eating, sleeping and elimination is assured a healthy body, of course, the daily diet should contain adequate amounts of fresh fruits and vegetables and other foods which have a natural laxative action.

Set Definite Time
Make the child understand the importance of "habit time." Set aside a definite time each day for elimination. The most desirable time is after the morning meal, but any other time may be chosen, so long as it is regularly used.

The child should be taught always to heed nature's call. If the urge is repeatedly neglected, the muscles of the bowel become weak and will not function properly. Chronic constipation soon follows.

Sometimes it may be advisable to insert a small suppository into the rectum. This can be kept in place by pressing the buttocks together for two or three minutes. The suppository will dissolve and stimulate bowel movement.

Do not permit the child to read, play or engage in any distracting movements while on the toilet. Avoid keeping him there longer than ten minutes. If he is constipated and cries whenever he has a stool it may be due to a deficiency of water.

The fecal mass which has been retained in the colon has become hard and dry and requires moisture. This may be overcome by drinking at least three or four glasses of water each day. It is well to add to the diet such laxative foods as prunes, apricots and rhubarb to bring about a normal consistency of the stool.

Above all avoid drastic cathartics. Often they set up severe irritation as well as serving to disrupt the normal functional activity of the bowel. An enema may be resorted to if necessary but never give any medicine unless prescribed by your physician.

Answers to Health Queries

Mr. A. S. Q.—How tall will I be at the age of 20 or 21? How much will I weigh? 2: How can I gain weight?

A.—It would be impossible to say as height is influenced by hereditary characteristics. Your weight would depend upon your height. 2: Follow the general rules for good health. The diet should be well balanced and nutritious. For full particulars re-state your question and send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

S. O. N. Q.—What can be done to overcome rheumatism which is probably due to an acid condition? What food should be avoided?

A.—Proper diet and regular habits should be of general benefit and advantage under these circumstances. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mother. Q.—I have been told that my children show indications of worms. What can be done to overcome this condition? What are the outstanding symptoms? They are fretful and irritable and lack appetite.

A.—Examination of the stool will determine whether or not the parasites are present. For further par-

Loose Fat The Easy Way—Without Starvation Diet, Harsh, Exhausting Salts or Weakening, Irritating, Habit-Forming Laxatives.

There's a reason why so many people find dieting slow and often times futile in reducing. The reason, doctors say, is often because a little gland is not working right. All the blood in your body goes through this tiny gland sixteen times every day. If it doesn't pour into the blood stream about one and one-half drops of vital fluid every 24 hours, many people take on ugly fat. This fluid helps Nature to "burn up" excess food and fatty tissue in much the same way as a good "draft" acts in a furnace.

Now, physicians combat this condition by feeding this gland the substance it lacks—and millions of pounds of excess fat has been wiped out this way. Marmola Prescription Tablets are based on the same scientific method used by doctors. So don't waste your time or money striving to reduce with methods that are harsh, futile or depend on harmful, health-hard, futile or laxatives for their action. Start the Marmola treatment today that will excess fat. The formula is in every box so you know just what you are taking. Don't wait—get Marmola today from druggists.

ticulars send a self-addressed and stamped envelope and repeat your question.

L. M. H. Q.—What do you advise for a very oily skin and enlarged pores?

A.—Proper diet, regular habits and lots of outdoor exercise should be of general benefit and advantage. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Mrs. R. V. R. Q.—My baby is now one year old. About, three months ago my doctor gave me a complete formula which included plain cow's milk. The baby will not take the milk. Is it absolutely necessary that he take it?

A.—Milk should be included in the baby's diet. It would be advisable to consult your own physician again. It does happen in very rare cases that cow's milk does not agree and then one of the prepared products may be acceptable.

Mr. T. O. D. Q.—My wife suffers from severe headache and pain in the back of the head. This condition is accompanied by great nervousness and suffering. Where could I take her for examination and advice?

A.—Such symptoms may be due to a number of causes. Make sure that her blood pressure is normal. Go to your family doctor or to any of the large hospital clinics for examination and advice regarding her condition.

D. W. T. Q.—What would cause a constant ache in the back of the head, causing irritability and nervousness? The patient is a man.

A.—Such symptoms may be due to high blood pressure. Have your doctor advise you. For further particulars send a self-addressed and stamped envelope, repeating your question.

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brishane

A SMALL boy, asked for the core of his apple, said:
"There ain't going to be no core."

Laval, French premier, tired of dangerous goings on in the Mediterranean, announces bluntly, "There ain't going to be no war," requesting England to remove her battleships from the Mediterranean.

The wise British have known all along that there was to be no war, but thought it well to indulge in various demonstrations.

Britons rarely make diplomatic mistakes. Diplomats of other countries are children to them, although France is an exception to that rule. Washington believes the war will end in 60 days, and has probably been told so by somebody in Europe.

THE ITALIAN government sent to the council of the League of Nations photographs of proceedings in the "ancient civilization of Ethiopia," showing a miserable creature held down while his right hand was cut off for theft; others, with both hands cut off for stealing; debtors owing trifling amounts with both wrists chained to their ankles so that they could not stand straight. These were "mild" photographs of that "ancient civilization." Others could not be published or even described. Horrible, actual photographs, showing small Ethiopian boys captured from a neighboring tribe, held struggling by powerful men, during a dreadful process of mutilation practiced upon them.

PHOTOGRAPHS can lie, but these photographs tell the truth.

Emil Ludwig, well-known writer, who dropped in yesterday, remarked that his travels in Ethiopia, preparing his book on "The Life of the River Nile," enabled him to say that the photographs were only accurate.

Some think it sad that Mussolini should end a government descended from the Queen of Sheba and King Solomon. Others think it desirable for Mussolini or anybody to end a "civilization" under which little boys are horribly mutilated, their captors laughing during the process.

Clearing out a rattlesnake's den would be criminal compared with clearing out the hideous brutalities of Ethiopian savagery.

ALFRED P. SLOAN, JR., president of General Motors, announces "all signals set for increased automobile sales next year" and NO DOUBT ABOUT IT.

He approves an automobile show in November instead of January, as giving the people more time to realize that the important car is the winter car, when the automobile "wears the rubbers" for the whole family.

MR. SLOAN spoke at a dinner given by Mr. Klingler for nine hundred Pontiac dealers. Mr. Klingler has transferred to his automobile business Danton's motto, "Audacity, more audacity, always audacity," and announced an increase of more than 50 per cent in his output for the coming year.

All good news, since automobile prosperity is the best gauge of general prosperity.

MR. DITMARS, of New York's Bronx Zoo, reports arrival of four vampire bats. These winged mammals nurse their young, have bodies as big as a large rat, and live on blood.

A sarcastic New York banker suggests that these bats be used to test the typical taxpayer and find if he has any blood left. If not, the bats will take mouse blood, although they prefer man's.

WHILE Mussolini's son-in-law, with three planes from the death's head squadron, was bombing an Ethiopian ammunition cache, his brother-in-law, Bruno Mussolini, 19, was learning about Ethiopian war methods.

Flying over Makale, he saw a white flag of truce, flew low to investigate and was met by "rifle fire from a column of uniformed Ethiopian soldiers" rising from the brush.

The young flyer returned twice to investigate more closely, with new rifle fire each time. Four bullets hit the plane, no harm done.

NEW JERSEY justice decides that Hauptmann, convicted of murdering the Lindbergh child, may live a little longer, to take an appeal to the United States Supreme Court. The Supreme Court may, in its discretion, decline to investigate Hauptmann's conviction. In that case, the curtain falls.

KARL VON WIEGAND describes Emperor Selassie practicing marksmanship in Addis Ababa, some distance from the front. Those allowed to compete in the contest were all "dukes, princes and barons." The emperor won his own first prize. "He likes to shoot his name in Amharic letters with machine gun bullets."

Von Wiegand says:
"Radio operators in the American navy arrived in Addis Ababa to install a radio transmitting set in the American legation for direct communication with Washington." That should help news reporting.

MAC LEOD, Alta.—The Royal Canadian Mounted Police detachment here does not own one horse.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper as father and son in "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," showing at the State theater Friday and Saturday.

Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper are again cast as father and son in the picture entitled "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," to be shown at the State theater Friday and Saturday. Others in the cast are Spanky McFarland, Henry Stephenson and Sarah Haden.

The story concerns Beery, as O'Shaughnessy, an animal trainer in a circus, and his son, played by Jackie. O'Shaughnessy's wife is a trapeze artist and the boy is being raised to be an animal trainer. The boy has an aunt who hates Beery and attempts to turn the boy against his father.

When Jackie's mother is killed by a fall from her trapeze the spinster aunt takes Jackie. Beery, who is lost without his boy, attempts a new animal act in which a tiger is to ride on the back of an elephant through a hoop of fire.

He is to try out the stunt, but when he gets in the cage he finds he has lost his nerve. The tiger senses this and springs on him. Beery is taken to the hospital and it is necessary to amputate his right arm.

When he leaves the hospital the doctor warns him that he must get over his fear and start working with the animals. But Beery can not do this for he must find his son Jackie. The years go by and the father is still looking for his son. One day the circus comes to the town where Beery is. The owner tells Beery about the death of his wife and that Jackie is in an exclusive military school. But when Beery finds his son he sees that his mind has been poisoned against his father by the aunt.

As the days go by Jackie sees how much the circus people love his father and he begins to wonder if his aunt were right. He finally learns to love his father and Beery, with renewed confidence, goes into the cage and performs his difficult stunt with the tiger.

The double feature bill will be shown tonight for the last time. It includes "The Goose and the Gander," starring George Brent and Kay Francis, and "The Virginia Judge," with Walter C. Kelly in the title role.

SAMPLE SLOGANS

Following are a few phrases showing how easy it is to enter the Canzol 4900 Mileage-Slogan contest.
Makes your Mileage soar 15% or more.
Shatters Gasoline Mileage Records.
More Miles on Less Gas.

WRITE A MILEAGE PHRASE OR SLOGAN AND WIN

3 years' supply of Canzol 4900, or any one of 32 other valuable prizes.

IT'S easy to write a slogan and it's fun to figure mileages in a contest.

ALL YOU NEED TO DO is write a slogan or short phrase best expressing the big mileage advantages of Canzol 4900, and also estimate how far a Ford, a Chevrolet and a Plymouth will run on a full tank of Canzol 4900.

THE RULES ARE SIMPLE. You don't have to buy anything . . . you don't have to sell anything. Just write your Mileage-Slogan and figure how far each contest car or any individual contest car will run on a tank full of Canzol 4900. Then submit your slogan and mileage estimates on entry blanks obtained at any Canfield office or service station, or on your own paper.

REMEMBER when writing your Mileage-Slogan or Phrase and when figuring your mileage estimates, that Canzol 4900 will give greater mileage than any other regular priced gasoline, because it contains, by actual test, 4900 more power units per gallon.

AT THE CLOSE OF THE CONTEST three 1935 stock model cars will be used to make mileage tests under the supervision of the Cleveland Automobile Club.

WINNERS in the contest, along with the actual mileage results obtained with Canzol 4900 in the three test cars, will be announced immediately after the contest closes.

YOU'VE GOT 33 CHANCES TO WIN. Look at the prize list . . . read the rules . . . then write your mileage slogan or phrase and figure out how far a Ford, a Chevrolet and a Plymouth will run on a full tank of Canzol 4900. Send in your slogan now. Contest closes November 5, 1935.

CONTEST RULES

- It is necessary in order to be eligible for a prize to estimate the number of miles each test car (or an individual test car) will run on a tankful of Canzol 4900, but, prizes will be awarded on the basis of the best Slogans or Phrases submitted.
- Any person and members of his family may enter the contest, excepting employees of Canfield, Canfield dealers and their families.
- Official entry blanks, containing complete rules and helpful suggestions may be procured from any Canfield Station or Canfield Office, or entries may be written on one side of a sheet of white paper. Entries shall be deposited at any Canfield Station or Office, or mailed to The Canfield Oil Company, Cleveland, Ohio.
- Entries close midnight, November 5.
- All decisions made by the Judges will be final.
- Only one entry per person will be accepted. All slogans entered become the property of The Canfield Oil Company.
- Mileage tests will be run immediately after the close of the contest under the observation and supervision of The Cleveland Automobile Club. 1935 stock models of Ford, Chevrolet and Plymouth will be used for the test runs.

Prize winners will be announced immediately after the test runs are made.

JUDGES

The following men will act as judges: Judge Homer G. Powell, Chief Justice, Common Pleas Court, Cleveland; Honorable Chas. M. Lantz, Mayor of Mansfield; Judge R. N. Wilken, Dover and New Philadelphia.

Blame Politics For Mishandling Relief

COLUMBUS, Oct. 17.—A sharp indictment of political influence in the administration of poor relief was before the Ohio welfare conference today.

C. M. Bookman of Cincinnati told the conference last night "the haphazard administration of relief by federal, state and county agencies is too costly and has been in a mess for the last five years."

"He laid the blame on 'political influence in the handling of poor relief' and urged the conference to make a 'concerted effort to break it.'"

"There must be patronage in politics," he said, "and there's nothing lower or viler than political influence in the handling of poor relief." Ohio's Works Progress Administration chief, C. C. Stillman, listened to the address, but declined to comment beyond "the address speaks for itself."

To Pick Jury

IRONTON, O., Oct. 17.—Common pleas court faced a fourth session today in an effort to secure a jury to try Elbridge Frank Smith, of Columbus, on a charge of plotting a train wreck in which two men died. Sheriff Bernard Monte summoned another panel of 30 persons for jury duty after 11 jurors had been seated in three days.

empire, and Makale, 60 miles south of Adduwa and the next major objective of Italy's northern armies. While bolstering their defensive positions, government officials discounted reports that Ethiopians had invaded at several points.

They stood pat on their previous flat statement: "If there is any initiative, the Italians must take it." Meager reports from the northern front indicated that from 200,000 to 300,000 Ethiopian braves were defending the defiles on Italy's line of march into the Highlands, after a meeting between Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa.

Counter-Attack Possible

These two chieftains—the Ethiopian commander in the north and one of the empire's most prominent leaders—were considered generally here to be in a position to launch a possible counter-attack for recapture of the Holy City of Aksum. Most Ethiopians believed, however, that Ras Seyoum and Ras Kassa would continue to consolidate their positions in the heights of the interior, to bar the road to Dessaye and Addis Ababa rather than venture an open assault against the strongly entrenched Italians.

On the southern front, the Ethiopian forces in barren Odaya province were believed to hold such strong positions that General Rudolfo Graziani would be able to advance his Italian lines only over desolate, bone-dry desert sectors.

Confident in the strength of their Odaya defenses, Ethiopians also believed the southern Italian armies soon would have to fight the dread November fever of that region as well as the armies under Ras Desta Denu, son-in-law of the emperor.

One report from Direwada, on the railroad from Addis Ababa to Djibouti, French Somaliland, said fear of this scourge already had caused General Graziani to dispatch 10,000 of his white troops to the northern Italian colony of Eritrea.

Outline Program Of Financial Aid

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 17.—Leaders of the senate of Ohio's general assembly outlined today a program to meet financial needs of state and local governments in line with proposals by a committee representing 26 business and trade organizations.

Paul Yoder (D. Montgomery) majority floor leader, and Frank E. Whittemore (R. Summit), minority leader, announced a plan at Akron, based on revenue derived from present taxes.

The committee, the inter-organization conference urged re-enactment of expiring taxes, etc.

DEATHS

MRS. ELIZABETH YOUNG

Mrs. Elizabeth Young, 68, died at 12:45 a. m. today at her home, 445 South Broadway. Daughter of Henry and Alla Bean Williamson, she was born Sept. 29, 1867, on a farm west of Fairfield, where she lived until she married Harry A. Quass. They had one daughter, Mrs. Bessie Orr. In 1914 she was united in marriage to W. H. Young, who survives her.

Also surviving are one half-sister, Mrs. Blanche Carter, Beechwood stop, Alliance, and a half-brother, Frank Williamson, Alliance. Mrs. Young was a member of the Salem Methodist church.

Funeral service will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the Stark Memorial, in charge of Rev. J. L. Culp and Rev. H. J. Thompson. Interment will be in Grandview cemetery. The family will receive friends at the Memorial Friday evening.

URGES CARE OF PSYCHOPATHS

Survey Finds State Lacks Proper Facilities for Treatment

(By Associated Press) COLUMBUS, Oct. 17.—Ohio, the state government survey said today, has "no proper facilities for treatment and confinement of psychopaths, a dangerous and difficult group."

The survey, in another report on the activities of the state welfare department, urged provision of facilities for psychopaths at the Lima State Hospital for the Insane.

It defined them as suffering "from a form of insanity in which the emotional life rather than the intellectual life of the victim is affected."

"In recent years," it said, "this particular type of insanity has come to be definitely recognized by psychiatrists but unfortunately it has no legal recognition."

Emotionally abnormal persons, it continued, "not infrequently become the most dangerous criminals."

It cited again the case of Merton Ward Goodrich, convicted slayer of a Detroit girl, and said:

"He had been three times declared by psychiatrists to be a dangerous psychopath, and an attempt was made to hold him at the Lima State hospital, but because he was not insane in the legal sense of the term, he was released on habeas corpus proceedings to commit his final and most notorious crime."

The survey made a similar example of Goodrich in a previous report on state hospitals.

More Pay Won't Help, Steel Official Says

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 17.—Movements for increased wages, overshadowing other recent developments in the steel industry, brought the comment today from Ernest T. Weir that pay boosts just now "couldn't help business."

Weir, chairman of the National Steel corporation, was the only executive who would comment publicly on the question, which was brought into the open by requests for higher pay from employee representatives of Jones and Laughlin and the American Sheet and Tin Plate company, a U. S. steel subsidiary.

HOME AWAITS APOLOGY NOTE

Spaght Had Called Residents "Laziest Bunch of Whelps"

(By Associated Press) SANDUSKY, Oct. 17.—The controversial whirlwind that Oakley Spaght started with a remark about the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors' home headed back here today as residents of the institution waited to see whether the assistant state welfare director would apologize.

A few hours after United Spanish war veterans in Lorain asked Spaght a direct apology to the institution here, for calling its residents "the laziest bunch of whelps in the state," a Sandusky American Legion post demanded that Davey Spaght.

Officials of Sandusky's Commodore Denig post of the legion said they might demand an apology also if the Lorain action did not bring results. Governor Davey awaited formal notification of the Lorain demand from Col. William E. Gillmore Camp No. 93, United Spanish war veterans.

The Sandusky legion post called upon the governor to retain Commodore Perry L. Null of the Soldiers' and Sailors' home and asked that Mansfield reformatory trustees be removed from the institution. Davey recently ordered that steps be taken to replace Null for alleged mismanagement. The commodore, who has said the trustees' board bills raised costs at the institution indicated he would fight dismissal through an appeal to the state civil service board. Null was appointed in 1921.

Willard Boy Hangs Self After Giving Rabbit For Food

(By Associated Press) WILLARD, O., Oct. 17.—Six years of watching his father work for work, capped by a last day without food, are over for 12-year-old Eugene Trushel.

The family, his mother, his father, his four brothers, ate no breakfast yesterday. Lunch time passed. Mrs. Trushel saved the last can of peaches in the house for a Spartan supper.

Sees Pet Rabbit Eugene went to the yard and saw his pet rabbit. He returned and told his mother to kill it that they might have meat for supper.

Then he hanged himself. He noosed his belt around his neck tied it to a stair railing, and jumped. Mrs. Trushel, sobbing, said he must have been too heartbroken to bear the thought of eating his pet. Coroner J. D. Bradish gave a verdict of suicide.

Food for the Trushel family has been uncertain for a year. Trushel once earned $175 a month as a railroad fireman. He lost his job in 1929. They had four children then, Junior, Eugene, Marion and Raymond. A year later Robert was born.

Savings gave out a year ago. The family went on relief. Trushel continued a futile search for work.

The relief administration gave him $5 two weeks ago to last the family two weeks. He borrowed a dollar from a friend and bought food when the $5 was gone. The FEHA told him it could not give him any more just yet.

He received notification that unless he paid his rent, the family would have to leave his home.

As news of Eugene's death spread through the town, neighbors rushed to help the family. Three automobile loads of food and numerous baskets arrived at the house.

Mrs. Trushel did not kill the rabbit. She made plans for the funeral of her boy.

Awaits Sentence In Wire-Tapping Case

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 17.—Edward Winkler, alias B. W. Godfrey, of Akron, O., awaited a prison sentence today after pleading guilty to a charge of using the mails to defraud a Columbus, Ga., resident in a wire tapping scheme.

Winkler, who was brought to Atlanta from the New York State prison at Dannemora, N. Y., where he served a term for running a fake brokerage office, will be broadcast into federal district court again Friday to receive the court's sentence.

Assistant District Attorney A. S. Camp said Winkler was the sole member of the "Clyde Smith gang" in custody for defrauding the Columbus man of approximately $60,000. The indictment said the group represented themselves as operating a "make-believe exchange" in Canton, O.

Sees Employment For Everyone Dec. 25

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17.—All employables now on relief rolls, according to Coddington Gill, assistant WPA administrator, will be at work either on WPA or PWA projects before closing sessions of the public works congress, composed of members of the American Society of Municipal Engineers and the International Association of Public Works officials, he participated in a panel forum revolving around the federal relief program.

CANTON COMPANY TO OPEN PLANT

Hercules Motor Corp. Establishes Branch at Muskegon, Mich.

CANTON, O., Oct. 17.—The Hercules Motor Corp., leading producer of heavy duty internal combustion engines in the United States with headquarters in Canton, today announced establishment of a new branch plant at Muskegon, Mich.

The company has arranged to take over the building formerly occupied by the Clark Sanding Machine Co. in that city. New equipment and machinery will be moved in at once so that operations may start as early as possible.

Plant Is Necessary Establishment of the plant is necessitated, company officials said, by the increasing demand for its products both domestic and export. It also is a part of the general expansion program begun some time ago at the local corporation.

Much material now used by the company is manufactured in Muskegon. Many additional manufacturing operations on this material will be carried on at the Muskegon plant but the assembly will continue as in the past at the Canton headquarters.

The Hercules Motors Corp. manufactures the convention type of gasoline motor and a Diesel or oil burning engine. The latter being interchangeable with gasoline motors of comparable sizes.

evidence on all sides. Hundreds of American-made trucks were carrying food and munitions to the front line troops, running up mountains, down precipices, over gulleys and through ravines, sometimes bumping over rocks a foot high.

Thousands of American mules passed over these same roads, but in this territory, the Italians considered that the American mule could not compare with the Eritrean mule.

Engineers told me that the American mules were too big to stand this climate and these roads. Hundreds of them have died. The Eritrean mule is much smaller, and carries less, but seems to have more chance of getting to its destination.

There are many American-made tents scattered about among the encampments.

Precision machines brought from the United States also are in wide use. A wide variety of American raw materials has been utilized by Italy in manufacture of the equipment and materials being employed in East Africa.

EAST PALESTINE, SALEM RENEW GRID RELATIONS FRIDAY NIGHT

Princeton, Yale Head Teams Composing East's "Old Guard"

"Old Guard" Term Applies To Seven Universities In the Eastern Baseball and Basketball League

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—The east has a big football conference such as the major western and southern leagues, but a couple of times each season it's interesting to see how the "old guard" is faring within its limits and against "outside" opposition.

The "old guard" is the term generally applied to the seven universities in the eastern baseball and basketball league—Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania.

Ranking Teams

Princeton and Yale, each with a record of 10-0, are the ranking teams of the group, as no others have engaged in internal competition during the "tune up" season. They are rated among the best teams in the east, and the Quakers haven't been disgraced by losing to Cornell.

With Cornell and Harvard down in the doldrums, the group has recorded eight victories and four defeats against outside opposition. This week's program should give them even better line on its strength. Penn is favored to beat Columbia in the only old-guard game of the week. Yale stacks up against Navy, a powerful team to all appearances, and one which might be included in the "conference."

Harvard, trimmed by Holy Cross in its only major game so far, takes up with Army and appears due to take it on the chin again.

Princeton faces its neighbor, Rutgers, in a renewal of football's fiercest rivalry.

Dartmouth, winner of three major games, faces a downtrodden

Brown eleven while Cornell, thrice beaten, has a week off before meeting Princeton. Columbia, Dartmouth and Penn in succession.

Aside from these games, most of the interest this week lies in the big intersectional clashes. The Pittsburgh-No're Dame, Fordham-Vanderbilt, Detroit-Catholic university and Boston College-Michigan State games are among the best prospects.

Conferences Busy

The real conferences are due for a busy time deciding their races. Ohio State's great team faces Northwestern, Michigan meets Wisconsin, and Purdue plays Calcasieu in the Big Ten. The Rice-Southern Methodist and Texas A. & M.-Texas Christian games in the southwest involve unbeaten title contenders.

The Alabama-Tennessee, Auburn-Kentucky, Florida-Mississippi, Georgia Tech-Duke, Georgia-North Carolina State and Maryland-V. M. I. games may help decide the southeastern and southern conference struggles.

The Nebraska-Kansas State and Oklahoma-Iowa State contests should straighten out the big six considerably.

The Rocky mountain conference offers Greeley State-Montana State, Utah State-Denver, Colorado College-Brigham Young and Colorado Mines-Colorado University. On the Pacific coast the conference games are less decisive, sending Southern California against Oregon State, Washington against Washington State and Idaho against Oregon.

Mrs. Moody and Fred Perry Rated Best Tennis Players by Court Expert

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, the "comeback" queen of the Wimbledon courts, and Fred Perry of Australia are rated as the world's best tennis players for 1935 in the authoritative rankings of A. Wallis Myers, British court expert.

Mrs. Moody, who probably won't receive any ranking in the United States because she failed to play in the women's national championships, was placed above her California rival, Helen Jacobs, on the strength of her victory in the Wimbledon finals.

Official Selection

Myers, whose "world's first ten" is generally accepted as the "official" selection, admitted having considered giving equal rank to the two Helens.

Her great performance at Wimbledon, when she trailed Miss Jacobs 2-5 in the third set then rallied to win, finally swayed him in favor of Mrs. Moody. Until she retired from competition in 1933 because of an injury, Mrs. Moody had held the top rank for seven years.

Fred Perry, London; Jack Crawford, Australia, and Baron Gottfried Von Cramm of Germany retained the first three places in the men's first ten.

Allison Is Fourth

Wilmer Allison, American champion, was placed fourth, followed by H. W. "Bunny" Austin, England; Donald Budge, Oakland, Calif.; Frank X. Shields, New York; Vivian McGrath, Australia; Christian Bonussus, France, and Sidney B. Wood, New York. Budge and McGrath were newcomers to the world rankings.

Following the two American Helens in the women's list were Kay Stammers, England; Frau Hilda K. Sperling, Germany; Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabian, Brookline, Mass.; Dorothy Round, England; Mrs. Ethel Burkhardt Arnold, Los Angeles; Mme. Rene Mathieu, France; Joan Hartigan, Australia, and Peggy Scriven, England.

WOOSTER FROSH BATTLE VARSITY

Try to Perfect Running Plays Which Must Click Saturday

Wooster college's first-year griders knew today that the varsity means business in the encounter with Akron Saturday.

Coach L. C. Boles threw two teams against the frosh yesterday to perfect certain running plays which must click if the Scots are to defeat the Zippers.

Lost to Case Last Week

Wooster, 1934 Ohio conference champion, lost to Case last week. The Ohio U. team has not been toppled so far this season and hopes to shatter the "Wooster link."

At Oxford, O., Miami's eleven practiced without both first and second team right guards, but Coach Frank Wilton believed that John Miller, Lorain, would fill the gap in good shape at Saturday's game with John Carroll of Cleveland.

Coach Ray Ride of Case warned the Rough Riders that they would have no easy time with Toledo Saturday. Ride said the Case squad would enter the game in the best physical condition since the season opener against Carnegie Tech.

Six new men will be in the lineup for Muskingum Saturday when the Muskies meet Heidelberg. The newcomers are Taylor and Burrier at tackle, Gregg at end, Glass at guard, Heacock at fullback, and Vanaman or Strayl at quarterback.

Ohio Stadium Boss Bothered With "Worm Bugs" Eating Sod

COLUMBUS, Oct. 17.—Tony Aquilla, gridiron grass-grower and stadium superintendent at Ohio State university has troubles.

"Worm bugs," Tony says, are ruining the turf on the football field inside the big Buckeye horseshoe.

No. 1 Fan

Tony's native Italy is engaged in a war. His football team—he's the No. 1 fan—is riding the crest. His stadium is filled with customers. But Tony doesn't smile. Tony's heart is heavy, and he doesn't try to hide the fact.

The churning feet of a couple of hundred football players have turned the gridiron into a cleat-torn battlefield. The northern half looks as if dozens of golfers had been practicing mashie shots by the hour. Tony, his head bowed and his hands gesticulating, explains that the turf "shouldn't act that way."

"The boys don't hurt it. It's them 'worm bugs' underneath," he contends.

Eat Roots

The "worm bugs"—Tony has not attempted to ascertain their species—are eating away the roots of the grass, inches below the surface. The result is that when a player digs in his cleats for a cut back, quick start or a four-wheel brake stop, the top layer of turf is torn away and the gridders skids.

And every time a clump of grass flies from the heels of a hurrying player, Tony emits another groan. It means that he has found another nest of the "worm bugs," and

Quakers Will Be Host To Bulldog Team For First Time Since 1929

Events Which Marked Last Meeting of Two Teams Recalled; East Palestine Has Two Victories And Three Losses So Far

Renewing a Columbiana county gridiron relationship that has been on the shelf since 1929, the Salem High school Quakers will entertain the Bulldogs of East Palestine High school at Reilly stadium tomorrow night.

The game will be somewhat of a homecoming for the giant mazzas that shed their lights on the turf of Reilly field for it was back in the stock brokers' "good old days of '29," the last time that the Quakers and East Palestine met on the gridiron, that the lights were installed.

The events which marked the last contest between the two schools are perhaps the most dazzling in Columbiana county athletic history. The Bulldogs, up to the Salem game, had marched through their schedule with an unmarred record and were conceded exceptionally good chances of punishing the Quakers for past drubbings.

The Quakers, as will be remembered, in 1929 were also undefeated and it was under such circumstances that these two Columbiana county rivals met.

Events of Last Game

One of the largest crowds to ever witness a clash between county schools no doubt will never forget how the Quaker gridgers barely edged out a 7-0 victory to mar East Palestine's record and leave their own untouched.

It was after this game that the two schools tabled their gridiron relationship.

Victory Important

The sensationalism that was displayed before and during the last meeting of the two schools will not be present in their engagement tomorrow night, but the importance of the victory to the 1935 season record of both schools surpasses any display of dramatics.

Records which extend back to 1922 show that an East Palestine gridiron machine never has defeated the Quakers. The Bulldogs' closest attempt was in the battle of '29.

During the years from 1922 to 1929 the Quakers have piled up a total of 163 points to a meager six for East Palestine.

Largest Score

The largest score recorded in these years was made by the Quakers in 1922 when they defeated the Bulldogs 27-0.

East Palestine comes to Reilly field tomorrow night wit hitwo victories and three defeats on its record to date.

The victories, both over Tri-County league opponents, have placed the Bulldogs at the top of the league standings.

Coached by Perry Van Hynning, the Bulldogs opened their season against East Liverpool, going down to defeat, 33-0.

The following week they opened their Tri-County league season by humiliating Louisville 12-6.

In their third game of the season the Bulldogs met and outplayed Toronto High but lost the victory by a one-point margin, 7-6.

Loss to Wellsville

Playing Wellsville, a Columbiana county opponent, in their fourth game, they were trampled under a 27-0 score, while last week they again emerged into the win column by defeating both a Columbiana county and Tri-County league opponent, Lisbon High, 12-0.

Although not an impressive record so far this season, the paper does fail to show the true power of the East Palestine team.

Against Toronto High, who had defeated Sebring after the latter team had held the Quakers to a scoreless tie, the Bulldogs displayed a passing and running attack that gave them the edge over their river opponents, but, as was the case with Salem against East Liverpool last week, they lacked scoring punch.

As leader in the Tri-County league, by reason of its victories over Louisville and Lisbon, East Palestine can be considered as nothing but a major opponent for the Quakers.

When Michigan and Ohio State played at Columbus in 1926, the paid attendance was 90,437, the stadium's record. The figure could be surpassed for the Notre Dame game this season, but in the interest of safety and comfort the ticket sale was closed when 77,000 seats were sold. The gross gate will be in excess of $200,000.

Mighty Men of Golf Begin Today To See Who Will Wear Crown of P. G. A.

TWIN HILLS GOLF CLUB, OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 17.—The mighty men of golfdom went hopefully today to their business of deciding who will be the next to wear the crown of the National Professional Golfers' association.

For the next six days it will be one round after another of gunning for the championship over Twin Hills' rough and narrow fairways.

Until sundown tonight 120 of the greatest professionals in the game will follow the 36-hole grind, seeking their places among the 64 low scorers qualified for match play, beginning tomorrow and ending with the finals on Tuesday.

The honor of sending the first drive screaming off No. 1 tee went to Bill Oliver, assistant pro at the Lincoln Park municipal course here.

Every nationally celebrated golfer in the pro division was entered in the fray, with the single exception of Olin Dutra, 1933 open champion. They included Walter Hagen, Gene Sarazen and Paul Runyan.

With the exception of Dutra, all the members of the American Ryder cup team were among the entrants.

Head For Coast

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17.—Al Hamilton, Cincinnati, claimant to the Ohio lightweight title, and Emory Helms, Covington, former Kentucky champion in the same division, packed up their gloves today and prepared for a proposed conquest of the Pacific coast.

In his final appearance for several months here last night, Hamilton won a decision over Wesley Martin of Cleveland in a listless ten-rounder. Martin scaled 133½, or three more than his foe.

VARIED BLOUSES

Pattern 2497 and 2498
You'll find it so easy to build up an extensive wardrobe, simply by making yourself several blouses. Pattern 2497 is at its best in silk or lustreous satin, enhanced by a sparkle of crystal buttons, and will be the makings of a soft little velvet suit or skirt. Pattern 2498, with its youthful tailoring, Peter Pan collar, and precision of wood or metal buttons is just the thing for classroom, office or sports. It's bright and warm in checked wool, jersey or novelty cotton.

Pattern 2497 is available in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 1 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c.
Pattern 2498 is available in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32. Size 16 takes 1 1/2 yards 36 inch fabric. Price 15c. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included with each pattern.

Send Fifteen Cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Annie Adams pattern, Thirty Cents (30c) for both. Write name, address and style number. Be Sure To State Size.
Important to send for your New Annie Adams Pattern Book For Fall and Winter! It pictures the newest styles and glorious new fabrics and shows how you can outfit yourself and your family—easily and inexpensively. Gives pattern designs for lovely gifts, and tells how to look more charming by suiting your clothes and accessories to your own personality. Price of Book Fifteen Cents. "LOVE DENIED"

by LOUISE LONG AND ETHEL DOHERTY

SYNOPSIS

Stuart Pennington, struggling young artist, loves Sharlene Stranding, wealthy society girl, but cannot ask her to marry him and share his poverty. Moreover, he knows Sharlene considers him just her best friend. Julie Devore, Stuart's model, is jealous of the society girl and would give anything for Stuart's love, but she means little to him. When Sharlene returns from abroad with the news that she is engaged to Kent Damerell, millionaire play-boy, Stuart's dream crumbles. He is, however, favorably impressed with Kent and realizes his rival is of Sharlene's world. Stuart returns to his studio with a heavy heart, Julie, watching from the window, is filled with elation at the thought that Sharlene rejected him.

CHAPTER VII

"Hello, darling," she said cheerfully. "I'm making a dress and I can't tell whether it hangs straight or not. Take a look-see for me!"

He turned on the lights and came to stand at her hem-line gravely, as she turned slowly about on the table.

"It should come just to the dimples in my knees," she said, lest in his preoccupation he should fail to notice.

He scowled at it. "Dips a little on this side."

"Fix it like a darling. Here are the pins."

He pinned up the dip and then stepped back to measure with his eye. "O. K., I guess."

"Thank you, angel. Help me down."

She placed her hands on his shoulders as he grasped her waist and lifted her. She came down lightly to the floor, sliding her arms about his body. She held him suddenly close and her embrace was compassionate, motherly, comforting. He warmed to her. They stood so for several moments.

"Darling!" she murmured. Then feeling a restlessness in him, she drew back and said brightly, "I've got something you like awfully for dinner. And see, I've laid a fire of eucalyptus branches. Let's put a match to it. That old fog is so chilly. Sit here, darling, and put on your slippers while I finish dinner."

In the kitchen she looked about frantically. She had made no preparations, and it was too late to go to the store. She had promised him his favorite food. . . . She need not have bothered. Stuart did not know what he ate or if he ate at all, though he had had no food all day, except the bits of ambrosia he had swallowed in a happy daze in Sharlene's parlor.

Julie chatted about this and that with great cheerfulness, until his occasional monosyllabic answers convinced her that he preferred silence. After that, she sat on a low stool at his knee and hemmed the black velvet skirt. Once when she rose to get some thread she kissed him lightly on the top of his fair head. He did not notice. They were very quiet before the crackling fire, Stuart pulling on his pipe, blank eyes on the flames, gone to the far land where Julie could never follow.

She felt that she was taking exactly the right track with him. Let him feel her unspoken sympathy.

She wouldn't press her own claims, as it was her impulse to do. Not the time for that now. She must think of him now—he was hurt. But after all, she was thinking of Julie. She had an eye for Julie's main chance and her perseverance never wavered. Here was a heaven-sent opportunity to get him on the rebound from Sharlene's heartlessness. Already she dramatized herself as Mrs. Stuart Pennington, the wife of the noted artist. For she believed that Stuart would reach the top of the heap. Lucien Morrow had convinced her that "the sky was the limit for Stuart Pennington, once he got his break." Besides, she loved him more than anybody who had ever come into her life. . . .

She was roused when Stuart got up to select a book from the shelves. Returning, he settled himself to read. Julie was astonished to see that he had the Bible.

Now and again she glanced at Stuart's absorbed face. It looked just like a mask. The color was coming back. What could the Bible say to make a man feel better about losing his love?

Presently he sprang to his feet and began pacing up and down. His eyes were big and dark. She heard him muttering:

"The full soul loathes an honey-comb—but to the hungry soul every bitter thing is sweet."

That sounded like something from the Bible, all right, Julie thought. But what consolation was there in that?

"To the hungry soul—every bitter thing is sweet!" he chanted aloud, exultations in his voice. He set up a clean canvas on his easel, and stared at it a long time, his blue eyes narrowed in intense thought.

He's thinking about a new picture, "for crying out loud," thought Julie. She was relieved, but also she felt cheated. If he was going to get his consolation in work—where did she come in? Or maybe she'd guessed wrong. Maybe it was a new picture that had been aching him all the time!

But the next morning when she picked up the "Examiner" at the foot of the hill, she found that it had been Sharlene Stranding after all. The newspaper carried a front page announcement of her engagement to Kent Damerell of New York. There were pictures, and a story full of charming incidents of Sharlene's life. Her mother had been interviewed, as the lovers had taken refuge in the sky in two fast little airplanes where the reporters could not follow.

Julie, avidly anticipating Stuart's reaction, brought the paper into the studio and handed it to him silently, pictures uppermost. He was already at his easel and tossed the paper down without glancing at it.

The model bit her lip with disappointment, then studied him speculatively. He knew—but he didn't want to talk about it. All right, she'd take her cue from that.

Stuart was still hard at his painting later in the day when Lucien Morrow came up, bringing Abe Foreman with him. The latter was a picture dealer—a hard-headed opinionated, little man, who knew his market. He could sell striking, colorful things to the movie talent who then had ready cash to burn. That is, if the pictures had an unusual theme, a mood. These movie people were restless modernists.

They liked strange, Puckish things. They loved terrific contrasts, drama, a sweep of movement and broad splurges of color.

This fellow Pennington's pictures, now, always had drama. You didn't sense his meaning at first glance. It crept on you gradually. . . . Finally, you'd buy it.

"You've still got that 'Death', Mr. Pennington, which was in the Stendahl exhibit?"

Stuart produced the small canvas and set it in a good light. Abe Foreman squinted at it silently for some minutes.

"H'm. I think I have a buyer. He liked it at the gallery. . . . says he can't get it out of his mind since I'll try to get five hundred dollars for it. Small canvas—no name. All right with you?"

Stuart nodded and began to wrap the picture in a piece of paper. "A little publicity about this one—and the next one will bring more. I'm going to build you up."

The art dealer looked about the studio. He came to the just finished "Sun Through Clouds" and was lost in contemplation. Lucien Morrow watched him with a faint, proprietary smile.

"This the one you told me about, Lucien?"

"Yes. Pip, isn't it?"

"I can sell that. How about it, Mr. Pennington?" declared the dealer.

"It goes to the Baltimore for two weeks. After that, you may."

Julie studied Stuart speculatively. He knew—but he didn't want to talk about it.

Julie was in the background, gloating. Lucien went over to her and pinched her cheek, exchanging delighted glances with her.

"Would you—and Mr. Foreman—have some beer?" she asked eagerly.

Mr. Foreman answered for himself. "Would I have some beer? Would a dog accept a chicken bone? Come on, let me help you open it."

He hustled off to the kitchen arm in arm with Julie.

Supreme Court's New Home Built To Endure For Ages

A great memorial to justice, a triumph in art and architecture, opened in Washington when the Supreme Court of the United States convened in its new building. It is reported by Clyde Bryan of the Bryan Granite Co. that the new home of the Supreme Court is one of the largest marble structures in the world.

The building was designed to outlive any public building heretofore erected in the country. Marble was used as extensively as possible on the interior, the Supreme Court chamber being almost entirely of marble.

Especially notable are the huge figures placed on either side of the entrance of the building on cheek blocks which are the largest pieces of marble ever quarried in the country, weighing 66 tons. The pediment over the entrance in which appear likenesses of Mr. Taft, of Chief Justice Hughes and of Elihu Root, former secretary of state, is Vermont marble.

Bryan stated that the entire exterior of the building is of white marble—Imperial Danby, one of the 52 varieties found in Vermont. There are 24,700 pieces of marble in the exterior, weighing from 200 pounds to 66 tons each, and averaging close to a ton each. More than 1,000 carloads of Imperial Danby went into the exterior of the building. There are pieces of marble on the cornices seven feet thick.

The building is supported and adorned by 68 marble columns. The 16 Corinthian columns that form the magnificent entrance to the structure are 5½ feet high, six feet in diameter at the base, and weigh 100 tons.

HOME-MAKING HELPS

By Wanda Barton

NOW THAT summer is over, many of us who have been fortunate enough to be invited to week-ends at country houses are cneeking up on our experiences.

And some of us are planning to have our own little cottage or shack by the sea or near the mountains, so that we, too, can offer hospitality to our city friends.

All this brings us down to guest rooms, those rooms that can be either a haven or very much the reverse. It isn't only country homes, though, that are equipped with a spare or guest room. Many houses in the suburbs also have that extra room.

Not Pretentious
But let's get back to that guest room that was so delightful on our visit this summer and find out just what made it so. It wasn't big, it wasn't pretentious, nor was our hostess mistress of an elaborate house. In fact, the room was small, and the house a simple one in an average, little country town. But, oh, the comfort, the sense of being in one's own home, that that little room gave its guests.

The furniture was simple, but the bed was equipped with a splendid mattress. The cheerful, little dressing table held a pin-cushion and on that cushion was a goodly supply of needles, pins, small and large safety pins in various finishes.

There was a small sewing box, equipped with silks and cottons, hooks and eyes and other items for repair work. Then there was a round box which held in its sections face powder of different shades. In a cellophane envelope was a supply of powder puffs. In another container we found small supplies of cleansing cream, cold cream, as well as an envelope of cleaning tissues. We also found a new toothbrush and a small tube of tooth paste as well as a small tin of tooth powder.

Other Conveniences
It so happened that we didn't have to utilize any of these items, but what a comfort any of them would have been had we forgotten something during our hurried packing.

But let's investigate further into this gem of a room. As we had to share a bathroom with another guest, we found in our room a package containing a face cloth and a shower cap, as well as a small cake of soap.

We spoke to our hostess and learned from her that most of the articles came from the popular-price stores, so that the upkeep of this most perfect guest room was very small. We have described this room for the benefit of those who like to entertain but feel that their home isn't pretentious enough to house a guest.
